Balearic Islands Doctoral Studentship in Catalan Studies

The Centre for Catalan Studies at Queen Mary, University of London, invites applications for a Doctoral Studentship in any aspect of Catalan Studies. A studentship will be awarded in August 2017 to the most highly qualified candidate applying for a full-time PhD programme starting in September 2017. In order to be considered for an award, applicants should have (or expect to have by the end of the 2016/17 academic year) an MA or equivalent qualification.

The award is tenable for up to three years and provides a maintenance allowance of £16,296 per year and, in addition, covers tuition fees at the home/EU fee rate of £4,195.<sup>1</sup>

We welcome applications in the following fields (involving any Catalan-speaking area):

- Literature
- Translation Studies
- Theatre
- Popular culture and sport
- Film Studies
- Linguistics
- History
- Art and visual culture
- Language teaching
